Initial Precursor and Distal Precursor Linkage Level Relationships to the Target

How is the Initial Precursor related to the Target?

Associating details with events in stories requires students to remember events and details across multiple pages in a text. At beginning levels, this requires understanding that objects still exist even when they are not physically present or cannot be seen. In the context of reading literature, teachers can help students develop an understanding that objects still exist when they can no longer be seen using the DLM Familiar Texts aligned with this Essential Element and linkage level that feature objects that characters are seeking. Students at the Initial Precursor level might look for objects that are hiding or missing while their peers associate those objects with events in the story.

How is the Distal Precursor related to the Target?

Associating details with events in stories requires students to remember both events and details. That begins with recognizing and remembering the people, objects, places, and events they encounter each day. In the context of reading literature, teachers can help students work on recognizing when they encounter familiar people, objects, places, and events during shared reading. The DLM Familiar Texts aligned with this Essential Element and linkage level are about common settings (e.g., home, school) and the people, objects, and events that are associated with those settings. Teachers can read these books with students and help them associate objects and actions with the text.
